

NOTA DE PRENSA

The capital was selected as Europe's Leading Meetings & Conference Destination at the 25th edition of the World Travel Awards (WTA)

Madrid, Europe's leading MICE tourism destination

- Votes cast by the international tourism sector ranked Madrid in the top position; the city beat out destinations like Paris, London and Berlin
- This award will enable Madrid to compete at the global level against the winners of the same category of the World Travel Awards in the regions of the Middle East, Asia, Latin America, Africa & the Indian Ocean and North America & the Caribbean
- In 2017 Madrid hosted 20,320 meetings, 15% more than in 2016, and the number of professional attendees also climbed to a record new high of 1,155,645, an increase of 10%
- One of the keys to Madrid's dynamism and prestige as a venue for professional meetings is public-private collaboration, led by Madrid Convention Bureau
- Created in 1993, the World Travel Awards have established themselves as a stamp of excellence for the global tourism industry

Madrid, 02-jul-'18

The city of Madrid has been recognised as Europe's leading MICE tourism destination. The capital took first place in the category "Europe's Leading Meetings & Conference Destination" at the World Travel Awards (WTA), which are considered the "Oscars" of the tourism industry and celebrate their 25th anniversary in 2018.

The award entails further recognition for Madrid, from professionals linked to the international tourism sector and members of the public with an interest in travel, whose votes conveyed their esteem for the destination of Madrid's MICE tourism amenities (Meetings, Incentives, Conventions and Exhibitions), ranking it above other European capitals like Paris, Vienna, London and Berlin. These capital cities were selected, along with Madrid, as the category's finalists by a panel of experts in March. The award ceremony was held on Saturday 30 June in the Greek city of Athens. David Noack, Director of Madrid Convention Bureau (MCB), took part in the event, representing Madrid City Council's Tourism Department.

NOTA DE PRENSA

Receiving this award will enable Madrid to compete at the global level against the winners of the same category of the World Travel Awards in the regions of the Middle East, Asia, Latin America, Africa & the Indian Ocean and North America & the Caribbean. This November at the WTA's Grand Final Gala Ceremony, to be held in the Portuguese city of Lisbon, we will find out if Madrid has also been chosen as the best meetings and conference destination in the world. The Emirate of Dubai, which won in the region of the Middle East, is the only one of the Spanish capital's competitors that has been announced so far.

Record high MICE tourism in 2017

Last year MICE tourism in Madrid showed a very positive trend, particularly with respect to major international congresses. This undoubtedly favoured greater communication and awareness around the world of the destination of Madrid's MICE tourism amenities.

According to the 2017 MICE Tourism Market Study conducted by the company Ideara for Madrid Convention Bureau, the city hosted 20,320 meetings, an increase of 15% with respect to 2016. The number of attendees, for its part, rose by 10% to 1,155,645 in 2017, compared to 1,052,489 in 2016.

Last year the city of Madrid hosted some of the most important global conferences, which brought a total of almost 80,000 delegates to the city. These included the Annual European Congress of Rheumatology (EULAR), with 14,300 attendees, the European Congress of Medical Oncology (ESMO), with almost 25,000 attendees, the World ATM Congress (WATMC), with 7,700 attendees, the 54th European Renal Association and European Dialysis and Transplant Association (ERA-EDTA), with 7,500 attendees, the 22nd Congress of the European Hematology Association (EHA), with 15,000 attendees, and the Annual World Dental Congress 2017 (FDI), with 10,000 attendees.

Professional meetings of this nature increase the city's prestige among associations and event organisers, who choose Madrid to ensure the success of their events. Some of these organisations have repeatedly placed their trust in the capital, such as the World ATM Congress, which has held its annual congress in the city since 2013, and ESMO, which held its congress in Madrid in 2014 and 2017 and will do so again in 2020. All of this highlights the fact that the award is well-deserved.

Public-private collaboration

Another key element of the dynamism of MICE tourism in Madrid is its commitment to public-private collaboration, through Madrid Convention Bureau (MCB), a specialised body within Madrid City Council's Tourism Department.

Both public bodies and the private sector have spent over 30 years working, investing and professionalising the industry to demonstrate that Madrid is one of the MICE sector's leading destinations. Their shared objective is to position the Spanish capital as one of the world's top MICE tourism destinations.

Over 200 companies are affiliated with MCB, representing all of the business sectors involved in MICE tourism in Madrid. Every year MCB undertakes some 30 international promotional activities, in collaboration with affiliated companies, to present and to strengthen the image of Madrid as a venue for professional meetings.

World Travel Awards

Since 1993 the World Travel Awards have rewarded excellence in all of the key sectors of the travel, tourism and hospitality industry. On a global level, the awards are considered a stamp of excellence in the tourist industry. The entire world is encompassed at each annual edition in the Grand Tour, a series of regional gala ceremonies that recognise quality on each continent and culminate with the Grand Final Gala Ceremony./
